

My First Week at College

Andrey Chechin

My first day in college, I was excited. It was the last day in February.

Kingsborough Community College is a beautiful place. It has a bright sandy beach with seagulls all around. Everything is new.

There are sculptures everywhere, decorating the college campus. Many of these sculptures are abstract and expressive. Others are realistic. For example, one sculpture is of a girl who is sitting in an easy chair and reading a book. I like this sculpture.

Many students come to this college from different countries. All of them want to learn English. However, in the beginning, they only speak their native language.

Now my head is spinning around, but I feel like I am being born again. I feel rejuvenated.
